1. Introduction

This is the evaluation plan of Sida's Department for Evaluation (UTV) adopted by Sida's Board of Directors on December 7, 2007. The evaluation plans of Sida's operative departments and the Swedish embassies in partner countries are attached as an annex. An earlier version of the present plan was discussed with Sida's Management Group on November 11, 2007. The present version reflects comments made on that occasion as well as comments from Sida's Board of Directors.

2. Sida's evaluation system

Sida's evaluation system consists of two parts:

1. Evaluations of projects and programs commissioned by Sida's operative departments and the Swedish embassies in partner countries. Focusing on the implementation and results of individual projects or programs in most cases, these evaluations are intended to meet the management and reporting requirements of the responsible departments. An overview of the evaluation plans of Sida departments and the embassies in partner countries is presented in Annex 2.
2. Evaluations commissioned or produced by the Department for Evaluation (UTV), an independent function producing evaluations of wider scope, often in co-operation with other donor organisations. The evaluations produced by UTV are submitted to Sida's Director General for management response.

With regard to the evaluations produced by Sida's operative departments and the embassies in partner countries – the so-called decentralised evaluations – UTV plays an advisory role. Maintaining an evaluation data base for the entire organisation and publishing all Sida evaluations in the Sida Evaluations series, UTV is also the bookkeeper of Sida's evaluation system as a whole.

For more information on Sida's evaluation system the reader is referred to Sida's home page at the Internet (www.sida.se).

3. Resources

The UTV share of the development co-operation appropriation allocated to Sida was SEK 10 million in 2007. It is expected to be raised to SEK 12 million in 2008.

During 2007 UTV resources for staffing could not be fully utilised. On the average 4.9 evaluators were employed during the year, as against an allocated 5.5. As it has been decided by Sida's Director General that UTV's administrative budget allocation shall be temporarily reduced with SEK 750 000 during 2008, the employment figure is expected to be further reduced to 4.1 before it is restored to normal in 2009.

4. Evaluation profile

As noted above, the evaluations carried out by UTV are either joint studies conducted in partnership with other donor organisations, or studies initiated and managed by UTV alone. Joint evaluations, which have become more common in recent years, meet an increasing demand for information about development co-operation results at aggregated levels. Such evaluations provide results information and lessons for future operations that cannot be generated through studies that focus on Sida's own contributions to projects and programmes.

By participating in joint evaluations and promoting a joint approach to evaluation generally, UTV seeks to contribute to the implementation of Swedish development co-operation policy and the Paris Declaration. Evaluation is an aspect of development co-operation where partner country ownership is particularly weak and where there is usually little harmonisation among donors. Working in concert with evaluation departments from like-minded donor organisations, UTV promotes partner country ownership of evaluation processes, as well as donor harmonisation.

Important as they are, however, joint evaluations cannot provide answers to every evaluation question regarded as important to Sida and the development initiatives supported by Sida. In many cases evaluations focusing on the results of Swedish contributions or issues of particular concern to Sweden and Sida are required. In the present plan there are 8 joint evaluations and preparatory studies for such evaluations, and 9 evaluations and pre-evaluation studies managed by UTV alone.

In the long term, UTV seeks to cover the entire range of Sida policies and programmes. At any particular moment in time, however, it can only deal with a small portion of that range. In the present plan the following issues are included: impact of Sida support for democracy and human rights, aid and trade, effectiveness of anti-corruption initiatives, capacity development for statistics, policy dialogue, exit management, and linkages between disaster relief, rehabilitation and development. Further details are provided below.

Inputs to UTV's evaluation programming process come from interactions with Sida management and staff and other Swedish stakeholders as well as from interactions with colleagues in the OECD/DAC Evaluation Network, the Nordic Plus Evaluation Group, and Active Learning Network for Accountability and Performance in Humanitarian Action (ALNAP). The evaluation programming process is intended to be as transparent and participatory as practically feasible.

The recent establishment of the Swedish Agency for Development Evaluation (SADEV) as an independent evaluation function assessing the implementation and results of Swedish development co-operation, affects UTV in many ways. With SADEV looking at Sida from an external point of view, UTV can focus more strongly on issues of organisational development and learning than would otherwise have been the case. The presence of SADEV also means that UTV can devote more of its limited resources to advisory services vis-à-vis other Sida departments.

5. Advisory services

In the past, UTV's advisory services have been directed towards individual evaluations for the most part, and delivered ad hoc as requested by the client. UTV's standing advisory function in Sida's Project Committee and Peer Review Group on Co-operation Strategies were the main exceptions to this.

Since 2006, however, UTV has adopted a more active approach to its advisory role, and seeks now to engage with the departments earlier in the evaluation process than before, even at the stage of evaluation programming. Responding to the overall strengthening of Sida's focus on the field, UTV also tries more actively to reach out to the Swedish embassies in partner countries. In 2008 a significant share of UTV's advisory services will be directed to embassies in countries where Swedish development co-operation programmes are about to be phased out.

The advisory services are intended to help increase the technical quality of Sida evaluations and make them as practically useful as possible. An assessment of a random sample of recent decentralised evaluations carried out in 2006–2007, shows that the technical quality of such evaluations is uneven and on the whole not quite satisfactory. A conclusion for UTV is that its advisory services to the departments ought to be strengthened. Workshops on evaluation quality issues with Sida staff and external evaluation consultants will be arranged in 2008.

On the direct request of Sida's Director General, UTV has during 2007 actively provided support for Sida's Results Project. Within the framework of this initiative UTV translated the OECD/DAC "Glossary of Key Terms in Evaluation and Results Based Management" into Swedish, produced a synthesis of lessons for results-based management from past UTV evaluations, and helped write the position paper "Strengthening Sida Management for Development Results".

Supporting Sida efforts to focus programme and project management more sharply on development results is considered to be a productive way of using UTV staff resources. The unevenness of outcome and impact information in development co-operation is due to neglect of evaluability issues at the planning stage as well as to shortcomings in the evaluation processes themselves.

6. Communication and publications

A considerable part of UTV's work consists of publication of evaluation reports produced by UTV and by departments and embassies and dissemination of information from evaluations. UTV has one staff member working nearly full-time with the printing and distribution of evaluation reports.

Disseminating evaluation results through seminars, workshops, and by other means, both to stakeholders within Sida and to other organisations, has become increasingly important in recent years.

7. Evaluations 2008

The evaluations listed below are arranged in four groups representing different stages of preparation and implementation¹:

- A. Evaluations and pre-evaluation studies completed in 2008.
- B. On-going evaluation and pre-evaluation studies not completed during 2008.
- C. Evaluations and pre-evaluation studies approved by Sida's Board of Directors but not yet been started.
- D. Planned evaluations put aside for re-examination in 2009.

Managing or lending support to the evaluations and pre-evaluation studies below will make considerable demands on UTV staff resources. However, in the making of this plan some management capacity has been held in reserve for unforeseen requirements. UTV may be invited by a partner organisation to participate in a joint evaluation or we may be requested by another Sida department to take on an evaluation assignment at short notice. If this happens lack of staff resources should not stand in the way of participation.

A. Evaluations and pre-evaluation studies completed in 2008

(1) Exit Management (joint evaluation)

This joint evaluation of exit management is conducted in co-operation with the evaluation departments of Denmark, the Netherlands, and Norway. Based on case studies in Botswana, Eritrea, India, Malawi, and South Africa, the evaluation focuses on two questions: Were the exits under review managed in accordance with established principles for development partnership? Were they managed with due care for development consequences? Draft country case study reports delivered in November 2007.

Status: Synthesis report completed in 2008, first quarter.

(2) Sida's work in the education sector

In co-operation with Sida's Education Division (UND), UTV has commissioned an evaluation of the management of Sida's educational support. The evaluation investigates how policy instruments and results information through monitoring and other channels influence the management of programmes in the education sector. The evaluation seeks to assess the quality of the policy instruments and the availability of relevant results information, as well as the capacity of Sida and the concerned Swedish frame organisations to make good use of them.

Status: Completed 2008, first quarter.

(3) Citizens' voice and accountability (joint evaluation)

An evaluation drawing lessons on how to effectively support voice and accountability (V&A) in different contexts is being carried out during 2007 and 2008 with DFID as lead agency. The first phase comprised a document analysis and two pilot case studies seeking to develop tools for evaluating interventions aimed at enhancing V&A. In a second phase five country case studies are conducted in Nepal, Bangladesh, Democratic Republic Congo, Mozambique and Indonesia. Sida participates through membership in the Steering Group.

Status: A synthesis report drawing lessons on what works, where and why with regard to V&A will be produced during 2008.

¹ Please note that the ID numbers are used in this plan only in order to make identification easier; they are not related to Sida's filing system, report numbers etc.

(4) Diakonia's Latin America programme

The evaluation assesses the broader outcomes of Diakonia's support for democracy promotion in Latin America. Diakonia, which is a key Swedish development co-operation actor, employs methods and strategies common in much of Swedish democracy promotion through civil society organisations around the world. Methodologically innovative, the evaluation is conducted by local and Swedish anthropologists and sociologists who seek to capture changes in the behaviour, social relationships and beliefs among beneficiaries in selected projects through repeated observations over a longer period of time.

Status: When the evaluation report has been disseminated in early 2008, UTV will continue discussions within Sida and the frame organisations on the broader lessons about strategies in democracy promotion, as well as on the usefulness of the methodological evaluation approach in assessing outcome and impact.

(5) Statistical capacity building (joint evaluation)

Relevant, reliable and timely statistics are crucial for formulating poverty reduction policies and strategies, measuring progress and reporting on development results. Sida has a long history of supporting capacity building initiatives in this area, mainly through support to twinning arrangements between organisations in Sweden and partner countries. The purpose of the present evaluation is to document existing evidence regarding what type of support to statistical capacity building is most effective and sustainable. The results will be presented to the High Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness in Accra in September 2008.

Status: DFID has assumed the role of lead agency and UTV participates in the reference group. The evaluation will be completed in 2008.

(6) Quality of Sida Evaluations

This study makes an inventory of the contents of Sida Evaluation reports and looks at the quality of their assessments of interventions in terms of relevance, effectiveness, impact, sustainability, and efficiency. The study is intended to serve as an input to ongoing Sida efforts to make the organisation more sharply focused on results.

Status: Published in February 2008, the study will then be disseminated and discussed through workshops with stakeholders inside and outside Sida.

(7) Sida Evaluation Studies and Audits 2007

UTV will review the contents of Sida evaluations produced in 2007. The review will synthesise findings and conclusions in relation to the established OECD/DAC evaluation criteria (effectiveness, impact, relevance, sustainability, efficiency) and in accordance with the reporting requirements set by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the yearly Appropriation Directives to Sida.

Status: Completed 2008, second quarter.

(8) LRRD II – a follow-up of the Tsunami evaluation (joint evaluation)

This evaluation is a follow-up of the special study on linkages between relief, rehabilitation and development (LRRD) after the tsunami disaster that was a part of the international Tsunami Evaluation Coalition (TEC) studies in 2005.

The evaluation provides stakeholders with informed assessments of the relevance and effectiveness of the linkages between immediate humanitarian relief, rehabilitation and long-term development co-operation. This second phase, which will be conducted in co-operation with actors in the affected countries, centres largely on the same topics as the first phase but will more strongly emphasise the views of the affected populations in the region.

Status: Approach paper produced and presented in 2007. Evaluation completed fourth quarter 2008.

B. On-going evaluations and pre-evaluation studies not completed in 2008

(9) The Paris Declaration (joint evaluation)

How has the Paris agenda been implemented so far? What explains any shortcomings in the implementation? As part of the comprehensive follow-up of the implementation of the Paris Declaration an evaluation process is under way. It will build on a number of country case studies in and of both partner and donor countries. The evaluation will address donor country behaviour as much as partner country capacity. Danida is the lead agency. Sida/UTV supports the evaluation through financial resources, if needed, and participation in a broader advisory group.

Status: Early findings will be presented at a follow-up meeting in Johannesburg in February 2008.

UTV will keep Sida stakeholders informed as further results emerge. Definitive results are not expected until 2010.

(10) Total ODA (joint evaluation)

With the emergence of joint aid modalities focused on partner country poverty reduction strategies, the demand for assessments of aid effectiveness at aggregate levels has increased. In the OECD/DAC Evaluation Network a pilot project for analysing the combined impact of total donor support in relation to key partner country development goals is underway. UTV has agreed to initiate a process of joint consultations with interested partner countries. Already delayed, this work will now be done in 2008. Depending on the outcome, preparations for two pilot studies will be started with as little delay as possible. UTV has expressed a strong interest to participate in one of the pilot studies if the project turns out to be feasible. With reduced administrative resources, however, UTV's participation must be down-scaled.

Status: Adopted by Sida's Board, but delayed. Consultation phase to be concluded during 2008.

Pilot phase possibly started in 2008.

(11) The Policy Dialogue

Dialogue is a well-established component of development co-operation. The purpose of the evaluation is both to assess the effectiveness of dialogue as an aid modality and contribute to the development of methods to evaluate it. The main question for the evaluation is: What is the effectiveness of policy dialogue as an aid modality? While it has more or less become a method for development co-operation the objectives of dialogue are, however, often unclear and its effects are not well known. It has never been subject to a specific evaluation by Sida.

Status: An evaluability study completed in early 2008, main phase of evaluation starts third quarter 2008.

C. Evaluations started but not completed in 2008

(12) Trade related assistance

"Aid for trade" is high on the donor agenda. On the request of Sida's Board of Directors, UTV in 2007 commissioned a pre-evaluation study of Sida's trade-related assistance that included a review of past evaluations and studies by other donor organisations and Sida itself. A workshop concluded that a full-scale evaluation of Swedish trade-related support should be undertaken. The exact focus of the evaluation was not decided, but it was suggested that it might compare support through international organisations with working through Swedish partners.

Status: The evaluation will be started but not completed in 2008.

(13) Pre-evaluation study of initiatives to counteract corruption (joint evaluation)

Corruption constitutes a major obstacle for sustainable development in partner countries. In recognition of this, interventions with the aim of counteracting corruption have increased in recent years.

However, it remains to be clarified which type of interventions have been effective, and under which conditions they were most successful. There is a strong interest in filling this knowledge gap, within Sida and among most part countries and development partners.

Status: Norad, Danida, DFID and ADB have formed an evaluation group with Norad as lead agency. UTV has been invited to join the group. A pre-evaluation study covering a literature review and an assessment of the typology of anti-corruption interventions is planned to be carried out in 2008. UTV will support this study financially and, as far as resources allow, participate in the reference group.

(14) Pre-evaluation study of initiatives to strengthen PFM systems within the framework of budget support (joint evaluation)

Donor countries have committed themselves to increasingly rely on partner countries' public financial management systems (PFM) instead of setting up parallel systems for managing program funds. As a result, they have also become increasingly concerned with the quality partner country PFM-systems and provided support for capacity building. The present evaluation is intended to assess the relevance and outcomes of PFM capacity building programmes. Taking a cue from the joint evaluation of General Budget Support from 2006 it might also take a closer look at the assumption that budget support in itself has positive effects on PFM capacity.

Status: A pre-evaluation review of existing evaluations and studies on strengthening PFM systems will be carried out in 2008. Depending on the conclusions of this study, a proposal for a joint PFM evaluation will be presented to interested donors and partner country governments in late 2008 or in 2009.

(15) Effects of support to democracy and human rights

Enhanced democratisation and strengthened human rights is a strategic priority in Swedish development co-operation. Direct support to D/HR consequently constitutes a substantial share of Sida's total development co-operation. The present initiative will focus on results and the causal mechanisms behind the results. The design and coverage of the evaluation will be discussed with relevant Sida departments. Ongoing discussions with like-minded donors of a joint impact assessment in the field of D/HR will also feed into UTV's planning.

Status: Preparations for the evaluation will start towards the end of 2008 and build on the results of an ongoing desk study of support for democratization conducted by DESO, Sida's department for Democracy and Social Development.

D. Evaluations put aside for reconsideration in 2009

(16) Review of Sida results information systems at country level

Originating as a follow-up to a recently completed assessment of the quality of evaluation reports commissioned by Sida, this study will assess the overall design of Sida results information systems in a sample of partner countries. Unlike previous UTV assessments of evaluation quality, it will consider how Sida evaluations complement existing mechanisms for monitoring. Taking the Paris Declaration as a key point of reference, it will also deal with questions of alignment and harmonisation in the area of monitoring, evaluation and reporting of results. It is intended as an input to ongoing efforts to strengthen the results orientation of Sida country programmes.

Status: To be put on hold and reconsidered in 2009.

(17) Promoting health

Preparations for an evaluation of Sida's overall approach to health sector support (policies, effectiveness, methodology, etc.) should have started in 2008. However, discussions between UTV and Sida HÄLSO, Sida's division for health sector support led to the conclusion that the project should be put aside for the time being and reconsidered in 2009.

Annex 2 Evaluations by Sida's Departments, Embassies and Field Offices

The evaluation plans at Sida's departments, the embassies and section offices for 2008 comprise 127 evaluations.

- Almost 60% of the evaluations will be carried out in accordance with prior project agreements.
- Almost 80% of the evaluations concern projects that have previously not been evaluated by Sida.
- Sida is responsible for the majority of the planned evaluations.
- 38% of the planned evaluations are to be conducted at the end of phase.
- Among the stated uses of the evaluation, 'need for information relevant to a decision concerning continued support' and 'basis for fine-tuning or modification of evaluated project/programme' are the most common.

The consolidated evaluation plan 2007 for Sidas departments covered 120 evaluations. At the end of December 2007, a total of 48 evaluations had been completed (including 13 evaluations not listed in the plan). The status of the remaining evaluations was reported as follows: 26 were ongoing, 21 had been postponed, and 26 had been removed from the plan.

A more detailed account of the implementation of the departmental plans can be found in UTV's Annual Evaluation Report.
